POSITION: FORESTRY STEWARDSHIP COORDINATOR

General Description:

The Nanwakolas Council is currently seeking a Forestry Stewardship Coordinator to join our Land & Marine Resource Management team. This is a full-time contract position that involves working in the office and the field, including in remote and rugged environments. The Forestry Stewardship Coordinator will be responsible for coordinating and implementing First Nation forestry surveys focused on Large Cultural Cedar trees and other important cultural resources. The contractor will report to the Regional Forestry Advisor.

Primary Responsibilities:

- Working with Nanwakolas staff and member First Nations to coordinate and carry out forestry surveys
- Training First Nation stewardship workers to carry out surveys in an efficient and effective manner
- Liaising with forestry tenure holders and the provincial government
- Supporting First Nation stewardship workers with technology and data collection
- Communicating and report writing
- Managing and analyzing data
- Helping to improve forestry surveys through adaptive management

Ideal Candidate:

- Broad understanding of forest ecology and management in a First Nations context
- Knowledge of Large Cultural Cedar and other First Nation cultural resources
- Technical experience with forestry surveys, tree measurements, Microsoft Office, Avenza, and ArcGIS
- Organized, personable, and adept at creative problem solving
- Strong communicator and writer
- Ability to follow standardized methods and protocols
- Experience with teaching and training in field and classroom settings
- Experience with coordinating projects in collaboration with First Nations
- University education in forestry, resource management, ecology, or a related field
- Holds a valid driver's license and owns a reliable vehicle capable of driving on logging roads
